

About the Author

Rosie Claverton grew up in Devon, daughter to a Sri Lankan father and a Norfolk mother, surrounded by folk mythology and surly sheep. She moved to Cardiff to study Medicine and adopted Wales as her home, before studying psychiatry in London.

Her first short film Dragon Chasers aired on BBC Wales in Autumn 2012. She co-wrote the ground-breaking series of short films The Underwater Realm. Her debut novel Binary Witness was first published by Carina Press in May 2014, with the sequel Code Runner published in September 2014. Crime Scene Books continued publication of the series with Captcha Thief in February 2016, followed by Terror 404 in June 2017. The first two novels in the series were re-released in April 2018, including an Audible release for Binary Witness.

Between writing and medicine, she has blogged about psychiatry and psychology for writers in her Freudian Script series. She is co-founder of Crime Cymru, the Welsh crime writing collective.

Recently returned to her beloved Cardiff, she lives with her journalist husband and nearly new daughter.